What is the Martinez Fellowship Program?

The Martinez Fellowship Program (MFP) is TAF's BIPOC early career educator support. We want teachers of color to not only come into and stay in education but to thrive. The rewards of teaching are endless, but the challenges are also real. The Martinez Fellowship provides early career coaching, ongoing professional development, and networking opportunities. All of which are grounded in racial identity development to support Fellows navigate the transition from teacher preparation program to their own classroom.

Program Benefits

The Martinez Fellowship Program team provides intensive cohort-based programmatic support for the first two years. There are four quarterly seminars and four Affinity Salons (informal gatherings where Fellows reconnect between seminars to reflect on their learning) per year, an annual three-day Summit, classroom/site visits and leadership support and development.

Like-Minded Community

- Support through a community collective
- BIPOC centered intentionality and mindfulness

Ongoing Support

- Access to all Martinez workshops and events
- Access to alumni Fellows network
- Targeted leadership development

District Partners

- Administrators with similar training
- Early job acquisition
- Groups of Fellows at school sites

Networking Opportunities

Opportunities to engage with seasoned educators and leaders of color

Sample Seminar Topics:

- What does it mean to be an antiracist BIPOC educator.
- What does actively dismantling systems that perpetuate oppression look like.
- How to create a more liberated and inclusive space for myself and my students to thrive.
- How to practice intentionality and self care as an educator of color rooted in social justice.
