I am currently a full time employee at the company (Expeditors), where I was given the opportunity to create a website where both the internal users are able to configure and publish a site to the base that my team has created. While the external users are able to see what the internal users have configured. Being a full time employee and doing this internship gave me more responsibilities to handle and manage. During the internship what I have learned over the three months was humility and adapting to the ever so changing environment. During the three months I have come to terms that I do not know everything and not everything is expected of me, furthermore adapting to the company's procedures was something that was refreshing compared to a project done at school. Overall, working in a corporate environment gave me new challenges and a new perspective on how to overcome the ever so changing tech field and can't wait for another opportunity such as this one.
